

Writing Credit Presentations

December 11, 2013 ▪ 8:30am - 4:30pm
The Bankers Center ▪ Baton Rouge, LA

This is training for credit analysts, commercial lenders & loan assistants on writing credit presentations. Attendees will learn how to prepare presentations that clearly describe the loan request, the borrower's ability to repay the loan, the proposed loan structure and overall credit risk. Special attention in the training is devoted to anticipating and preparing for questions posed by examiners in reviewing commercial real estate and working capital loans.

Seminar Background

As never before, commercial credit presentations should reflect a lender's reasoning and the basis for recommending approval of a loan. Presentations should be concise but complete with the key information and analysis required for the rendering of a credit decision. In today's economy, presentations must also meet the ever increasing scrutiny of examiners. Unfortunately, loan presentations many times are poorly written, fail to clearly explain loan structure and lack key information for supporting the soundness of the loan.

Sample Presentations

In the training, attendees review a series of sample loan presentations for the following types of loans:

- ◆ Commercial Real Estate Term Loan
- ◆ Owner Occupied CRE Loan
- ◆ Working Capital Line of Credit

Attendees will identify the specific weaknesses in the credit presentations, then will review how the presentations can be rewritten or will identify the information required to correct the deficiencies.

In reviewing these sample presentations, we will address the following topics:

◆ The Loan Request

We will outline the major components of a commercial loan presentation. Attendees will learn how to succinctly summarize the key components of the loan request.

◆ Poor Loan Structure

We will review how presentations should identify the purpose of a loan and the primary, secondary & tertiary sources of repayment. We will also review how the proposed loan structure will protect the source of repayment.

◆ Projected Cash Flow

From an examiners perspective, cash flow is the primary source of repayment for a commercial loan. We will review what must be shown in a presentation to support projected cash flow of the borrower and how to anticipate and prepare for the questions typically asked by underwriters/examiners when reviewing cash flow projections. Attendees will also review the requirements for presenting cash flow projections for Commercial Real Estate loans.

◆ Inadequate Guarantor Analysis

Attendees will review the requirements for presenting the analysis of a guarantor. If the guarantor is the basis for a loan being classified with a Pass grade, we identify what must be shown in the presentation to justify the guarantor as a credit mitigant.

◆ Inadequate Financial Analysis

Poorly prepared presentations many times restate obvious changes in financial ratios, profit margins, liquidity or leverage while failing to explain why the changes have taken place. Others lack an in-depth analysis discussion. We will identify inadequate financial analysis and explore ways for improvement.

◆ Business/Industry Background

We will identify the key requirements that a presentation should include in describing a borrower's industry, product/service, competition & market, competitive advantage and management background.

◆ Unsubstantiated Collateral Valuation

We will identify the necessary information that should be in a credit presentation and/or credit file regarding collateral valuation. We will learn how to justify to examiners the value of Commercial Real Estate, Accounts Receivable, Inventory & Equipment.

◆ Poorly Written Narratives

Attendees will recognize poorly written, confusing language, contradictory statements and omissions. We will learn how to avoid these common mistakes and how to improve the quality of the narratives.
